Subject: Resolution and Letter in Support of UC Academic Workers’ Ongoing Contract Negotiations and Strike Actions

RECOMMENDATION
Adopt a Resolution in support of UAW 2865, UAW 5810, and SRU-UAW’s ongoing contract negotiations and strike actions at UC Berkeley and across all UC campuses, and send a letter of support to UC President Michael Drake and Provost Michael Brown.

BACKGROUND
United Auto Workers (UAW) represents over 48,000 workers at the University of California, including academic researchers (UAW 5810), postdocs (UAW 5810), academic student employees (UAW 2865), and student researchers (SRU-UAW). All four bargaining units have been in contract negotiations with the UC Office of the President since the spring of 2021, and have authorized a strike that began on November 14, 2022.¹

UAW has passed proposals across the table that address cost of living, support for international students and student-parents, transportation-related greenhouse gas emissions, disability justice, job security, and more. The most common salary that graduate workers earn is $23,247. A UAW membership survey found that 92 percent of graduate workers and 61 percent of postdoctoral scholars are rent-burdened, with 40 percent of graduate workers spending more than half of their income on rent. Given that these workers balance their campus jobs with their student responsibilities, they often do not have the ability to take on another job.

Many of these academic workers are affiliated with UC Berkeley and reside in the City of Berkeley. Without UC’s commitment to support a diverse workforce with compensation that matches the cost of living, the quality of research and education declines and students are pushed out of academia — and out of Berkeley. The UC administration must come to the table to bargain in good faith and settle a fair contract with its workers.

RE: City of Berkeley’s Support for UAW 2865, UAW 5810, and SRU-UAW’s Ongoing Contract Negotiations and Strike Actions

Dear President Michael Drake,

The Berkeley City Council would like to convey our firm support for the bargaining priorities and collective bargaining rights of UC academic workers, including the right to strike.

UC Berkeley’s academic researchers, postdocs, academic student employees, and student researchers are treasured members of our community. They work closely with faculty to provide a quality public education to students and conduct field-leading research that raises Berkeley’s national profile. The City of Berkeley would not be what it is without their contributions.

As the cost of living has dramatically increased in California, financial support for UC workers has not. We are acutely aware of the impacts of the housing crisis on the ability of academic workers to meet their basic needs and remain in academia. In order to support these workers and all UC Berkeley students, the administration must come to the bargaining table in good faith.

We call on the UC Office of the President to settle a fair contract that meaningfully responds to UAW’s proposals on cost of living, support for international students and student-parents, climate, disability justice, and job security.

Respectfully,

The Berkeley City Council

CC: Michael Brown, Provost and Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs
